

I am Dr Kadelle Jessamy, 32 years of age and a Medical Doctor by profession. I possess a Master's degree in Public Health and a Diploma in Global Leadership from the United Nations University of Peace. I was raised in the historic community of Laventille, which is in the East Port of Spain district and as such, have always been in awe of our rich culture and diversity as a nation. I have a passion for education and learning and as such, believe myself to be a suitable addition to the Council of the National Trust as we aim to achieve our Strategic Goals particularly Goals Number 2 (Enabling Environment) and 4 (Education and Outreach).

If selected, I intend to work closely with the other esteemed members of the Council to increase our membership, to expand our outreach initiatives and to offer a youthful perspective. I also intend to be innovative in assisting with the expansion of the Heritage Keepers (Trust Junior) as preservation is an ongoing process and the need for increased and sustained youth involvement cannot be underscored enough.
